Penrose wins Bay school board election

LINDA PENROSE

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Waveland resident Linda Penrose won a seat on the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Saturday in a run-off election capturing 277 votes.

Penrose's opponent John Mason had 179 of the 407 votes cast.

Approximately 100 less voters turned out for the run-off election than voted two weeks ago in the first election.

Penrose also lead in the first election with more than 40 percent of the votes over Mason and Clarence Harris.

She will take the seat vacated by former school board president Walter Turcotte who did not seek reelection. Turcotte had served two terms for a total of 10 years on the school board.

Bay council votes to sell slot machines

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
In a special meeting the Bay St. Louis City Council approved a resolution Wednesday to request the state legislature to allow the city to sell confiscated slot machines from a recent gambling raid.

This was the second time the resolution had been recommended by Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. Earlier this month when the resolution was presented to the board, no action was taken.

Area residents turned out again to protest the sale of the machines which were confiscated from Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253 and Disabled American Veterans Post 50 in January.

The machines should be destroyed, it is not good for something of value destroyed but if the city is above gambling, why shouldn't it be above passing the illegal machines on, Robert Bourn said.

VFW Commander Charlie Carver asked the council why they didn't petition for the legalization of gambling instead of petitioning for the right to sell the machines.

Another person asked if the city confiscated any marijuana in a raid were they going to try and sell it someplace else.

Frankiewicz answered saying while gambling was legal in Atlantic City and Las Vegas, marijuana is generally illegal everywhere.

He went on to compare selling the machines to selling liquor that had been brought into the state illegally.

Councilman John Wilkerson said he was not in favor of destroying the machines but he did believe that sending the resolution to the legislature was a useless gesture.

Councilman Lisa Coward said that as long as there was one percent chance of the legislature passing the resolution she was in favor.

"We should do what we can to get the funds for the city," she added.

"The machines are contraband, I think we should sell the machines just like the sheriff's offices sell cars confiscated in drug raids," Councilman James Thriffley said.

The council voted 4-1 in favor of the resolution with Councilman Charles Johnson voting nay.

Waveland City Alderman Louie Smolensky, left, and 1986 Grand Marshall Jay Lagasse III join Irishmen and Irishmen at heart in Saturday's St. Patrick's Day parade which featured more than 60 entries. Cabbages and potatoes (Irish, of course) were the favorite catchers of parade goers.

County eyes hospital problems

Supervisors disagree on road, delay on black appointee

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has dealt with the problem of a road into the Hancock Medical Center site but has done nothing about a request for black representation on the hospital board other than to place the matter on record.

The road in question will provide access from US-90 to the medical center.

Supervisors Roger Dale Ladner and Sam Perniciaro and County Engineer Larry Seal planned to inspect the medical center site after Thursday's meeting to discuss the road, which has caused some dissension among board members.

Numerous questions about the road remain unanswered, including how long the road will be and how much construction will cost.

Seal pointed out that the road could extend about 1,200 feet to the first entrance to the medical center parking lot, between 1,300 and 1,400 to the second parking lot entrance or to Drinkwater Road, although the third option is not likely.

Soil conditions on the site are expected to require some excavation and placement of select fill material as part of construction of the roadbed, Perniciaro said.

Seal added that the road will need curbing and proper drainage as well and recommended the use of long-lasting materials for the project.

The engineer asked that a meeting be set up with hospital administration so that he and three supervisors, Ladner, Perniciaro and James Travirca, can make sure the final plans for the road fit in with overall plans for the medical center site.

Board President A.A. Kellar said he feels the county has the responsibility to build the road but questioned how the project is to be funded.

Ladner said the county has "a verbal agreement with the hospital board" to build the roadbed with county labor and contract for the paving.

He asked that the board go on record with that agreement.

Kellar said the hospital board had promised that its contingency fund would be used to repay the county for the road but said much of that fund has been used to correct drainage problems.

Ladner asked the board for a vote on a resolution stating that the supervisors will do "whatever is needed" to provide the road.

He proposed that each supervisor provide one-fifth of the total cost through road and bridge funds, or that the board look into the possibility of taking the money out of the county general fund.

Ladner, Kellar, Travirca and Perniciaro voted for the motion but Supervisor Bert Courge voted against it.

Courge said he dissented because he felt the board should know how the project would be funded before committing to it.

He added that he does not have enough road and bridge funds to provide one-fifth of the cost, particularly since the amount remains undetermined.

He also voted against hiring Seal to handle the project.

In another matter pertaining to the hospital, the supervisors were asked to go on record with a request by Geraldine Lang of Concerned Citizens for appointment of a Black to the Hancock General Hospital Board.

Lang had made the request at a previous meeting and had asked for a promise from the board that a black would be considered.

The board, however, is presently considering extending the terms of two board members whose appointments will expire in September to January 1987 in order to allow them to remain on the board until Hancock Medical Center is dedicated.

Those members include at-large commissioners Conrad Mauffray and Rev. Charles Johnson.

Ladner said all appointees except the two at-large representatives would have to live within specific pains and hyperventilated, according to hospital spokesman. She was treated and released from the hospital and returned to the custody of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office. Vlahos set Ryan's appeal bond at $10,000, double the usual amount. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Audit shows tax office overage

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Tax Collector and Assessor's Office has reported a $78,550 overage to the board of supervisors. Tax Collector Edward Murtagh told the board Thursday that an audit shows $78,550 in unaccounted for funds. About $10,559 was found to be interest on invested tax receipts, $22,145 was tax money that should have been turned over to the county and school district and $7,157 was auto taxes. Most of the overage, however, was identified as tax receipts from the prior year and mapping fees. About $34,113 is still unidentified. The identified overage money has been placed in its proper funds. Of the unidentified money, $19,607 was turned over to the county general fund and $14,506 was turned over to the county school district. If Murtagh is able to find out where the unidentified funds came from, the county will return them to the appropriate accounts.

Commercial boat service to Ship Island restricted to approved franchise holders

Gulf Islands National Seashore rangers will step up enforcement of laws prohibiting unauthorized commercial activities within the Seashore in 1986, according to Superintendent Jerry A. Eubanks. "There are reports of increasing commercial activity by unauthorized boat operators transporting the general public to Ship Island, in particular," said Eubanks who emphasized that such service is presently authorized to be provided only by two local firms under contract with the National Park Service. "Even more importantly than enforcement," said the superintendent, "is education of the local community as to whom we have boat transportation concession contracts with and why we contract with them." "The National Park Service, since its inception in 1916, has recognized that commercial services to visitors can be best provided by private interests operating as franchised concessioners," he continued. "For the past 70 years, these franchised concessioners, operating throughout our National Park System, have been enhancing visitor use and enjoyment of the national parks operating grocery stores, souvenir shops, hotels, restaurants, bus tours, hiking and climbing guide service, horses and mules, river running excursions, boat transportation and a multitude of other activities," Eubanks said. On the Mississippi Gulf Coast, two branches of the Skirmetta family provide boat tours to Ship Island. Pan Sun Excursion Boats, Inc., operated by Captain Noel J. (Jimmy) Skirmetta, connects Biloxi with Ship Island, while Pan Isles, Inc., operated by Captain Peter M. (Pete) Skirmetta, sails from Gulfport. These two companies are enfranchised by contract with the National Park Service, which operates Gulf Islands National Seashore, to provide public boat transportation to West Ship Island on a regularly-scheduled basis from about Easter through the first weekend in October. The National Park Service closely regulates all public services provided by its concessioners, primarily by approving rates, prices, and schedules, establishing operating, safety and physical facility standards, and by inspecting and evaluating operations, Eubanks added. Concessioners, in their turn, are required to comply with standards set by the National Park Service and to otherwise conform to Service-imposed regulations and policies pertaining to them. In exchange for the privilege of having an exclusive franchise to provide a specific service, concessioners pay the National Park Service a franchise fee, usually an established percentage of operating revenues. Providing a commercial service to the public in a National Park Service area is specifically established by law to be a privilege extended by the Service and is not an inherent right of any person or commercial enterprise. Any person or commercial enterprise conducting commercial business operations within the boundaries of a National Park Service area without a license, permit or contract to do so, is in violation of Federal statute and is subject to arrest and fine and/or imprisonment, depending on circumstances. National Park Service Rangers have arrest authority with regard to these violations and are under instructions to vigorously enforce the law. "Unregulated commercial services - in this case boat transportation - is a potential threat to the health, safety and enjoyable experience of our visitors and an unwarranted environmental and adverse use risk for the Seashore," said Eubanks.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

No matter where you are, at home or at work or on vacation, the fascinating world of wildlife is there to be discovered.

Stop, look, and listen and you will be surprised by how many animals are around.

At first you may recognize only the familiar sights and sound of robins and crickets. But the more you learn about animals, the more you will see.

National Wildlife Week, sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation, is March 16-22. The observance is the perfect opportunity to discover the wonderful world of wildlife.

A big part of discovering wildlife is knowing where to look. Animals of all sizes, shapes and colors live in all kinds of places.

You don't have to go to national parks and wildlife refuges to find animals. Farms and woodlots, city parks and vacant lots, schoolyards and even backyards are home for all kinds of creatures.

If you like to watch animals, you aren't alone. About one-fourth of the adults in America are bird-watchers, and many people feed birds in their yards. Animals have inspired thousands of photographers and artists, and millions of people watch television programs about wildlife. Hunting and fishing are popular American sports.

Unfortunately, some animals haven't survived manmade and natural habitat changes. It is estimated that, on an average, worldwide, one type of plant or animal becomes extinct each day. And many others are in danger of becoming extinct.

The bald eagle, California condor, gray wolf, black-footed ferret and Florida panther are only a few of more than 350 species on the official list of endangered and threatened species in the United States.

Although the extinction of passenger pigeons or Carolina parakeets or any other animal may seem insignificant, each species plays an important, perhaps essential, role in the larger web of life.

Fortunately, many animals have survived changes in their habitat. Some animals have even helped by them. Killdeer build nests on level surfaces. So, lawns, parking lots and flat roofs add to the number of available nest sites for this bird.

Raccoons often live in storm sewers, and scavengers that they are, find a delicious variety of insects, nuts and garbage to eat in cities and suburbs.

People also have done a great deal just for wildlife and their habitat. Laws have been passed to protect endangered and threatened wildlife. Fishing, hunting and trapping help keep wildlife populations from becoming so large that the animals can't find enough food.

Some zoos and research centers breed rare animals in hope of releasing some of them in areas where they once lived. And land has been saved as refuges so that animals have places to live.

Close to home, gardeners and landscapers help wildlife by using plants that provide food and shelter. And you, too, can help wildlife. Try putting up a feeder or bird house at home or school. If you put a dish of water on the lawn, birds and squirrels might drink from it.

Hederman family establishes journalism lectureship at UM

Members of the Hederman family, long prominent in Mississippi publishing, have established a $100,000 endowment for a journalism lectureship at The University of Mississippi.

When fully endowed, interest earned from the Hederman Lectureship in Journalism fund will allow the university to retain a scholar of nationally recognized quality to teach principles of journalism writing and ethics, Ole Miss Chancellor R. Gerald Turner said of the gift to The Campaign for Ole Miss.

"This lectureship ensures that the journalism department will be able to attract or retain top-ranked faculty members for its teaching staff and that the program will be not only the best in the state of Mississippi but also among the best in the nation," Chancellor Turner said.

"The lectureship also stands as a monument to this great Mississippi family with a history of service to this state and achievement in both journalism and printing. Through their generosity, generation after generation of young journalism majors will be trained to uphold traditions of quality and professional leadership."

The Hederman publishing tradition began in 1898 when Robert Michael Hederman and Thomas Martin Hederman purchased the commercial printing operation of their uncle, Robert Hiram Henry. In 1920 the brothers had saved enough money to buy their uncle's newspaper, The Clarion-Ledger. Members of the family also owned Jackson's first television station, WJTV, and operated the Hederman Brothers commercial printing plant. The family sold the Clarion-Ledger, Jackson Daily News, Hattiesburg American and a group of weekly newspapers to Gannett Co. Inc. in 1982.

Hederman family members contributing to the journalism lectureship endowment are Jackson residents Zach Hederman Sr. of Riverside Drive, Henry Hederman Sr. of Old Canton Rd., Mrs. Tom Hederman Jr. of Belvoir Place, Eleanor H. Wettach of Old Canton Rd. and Zach Hederman Jr. of East Manor. Also making donations are Arnold Hederman Jr. of Mendenhall, Bernice "Buzzy" Hussey of Memphis and Gail Hederman Salter of Tyler, Texas.

Short falls of funds appear to be the topic of discussion among everyone nowadays.

Federal, state and local agencies are all having to make belt tightening measures.

Several federal programs appear to be on the way out while others will be getting large cuts.

This will effect all citizens in the long run as it will funnel down through our local government agencies.

It is hoped that Hancock County will not be hit too hard.

Friday was sure a beautiful day and welcomed by beach goers, as many took the opportunity get their suntans started.

We have also noted many redbud trees in full bloom throughout the area.

It appears that Spring has already arrived on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Still we should be cautious, as another cold blast may come our way.

In case some boys and girls ages 9-12 failed to register for the Bay St. Louis Little League either Friday or Saturday, they still have a chance on Monday from 6 to 8 p.m.

The registration will be at the Little League Field next to Tiger Stadium in Bay St. Louis.

Further information about registration can be obtained by calling Terrell LaFontaine, 467-3580; or Steve Carver, 467-7669.

Spring cleaning of yards appears to be in full swing now that warm weather is here.

Both the City of Bay St. Louis and Waveland have ordinances which cover the proper way to prepare the debris for collection.

Limbs, trees, stumps, etc. should be in certain lengths and within certain weights or it will not be collected.

It takes a little extra work to properly prepare the trash, but it helps the sanitation departments in the removal.

The City of Waveland has a reminder in the Public Notices of this issue of the Echo on it's proper requirements of debris collections.

We recommend citizens of Bay St. Louis give Gulf Coast Waste a call if they have any question about its requirements for collecting trash or debris in the Bay.

I have never had any problems in having trash collected from my residence, but on the other hand I have also followed the regulations in preparation.

GOOD—AND SERIOUS— NEWS FOR BUSINESS

There's good news today for business.

And, there is serious news, too. Recent public opinion polls at both national and state levels have indicated a restoration of confidence in business by the American public. After 20 years of cynicism and distrust, the public is saying again today, "What's good for business is good for America," and "What's good for business is good for Mississippi."

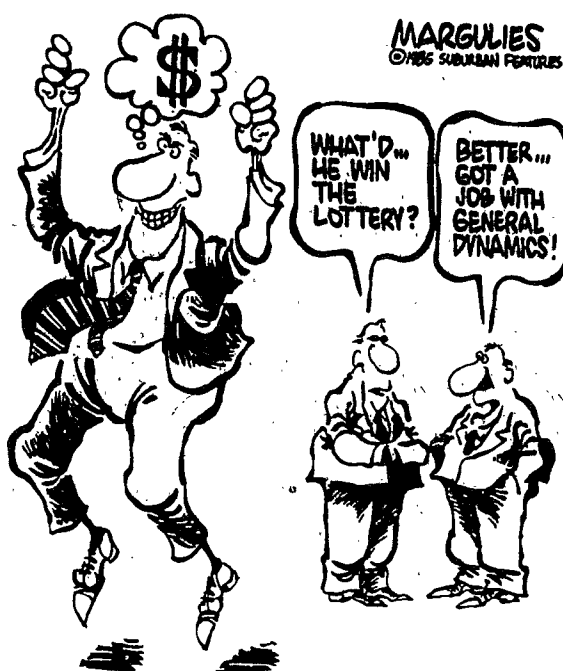

One reason for the restoration of confidence is that business went to work, telling its story across the land and across the state, helping other Americans understand the principles and the values of the free enterprise system.

In Mississippi, business leadership, through the American Enterprise Center of the Mississippi Economic Council, began to tell the free enterprise story to elementary and secondary students, to teachers, and to adults in the work force. The effort has paid substantial dividends.

The serious news is that, yes, Americans want and expect business to make a profit, but they expect quality products and fair prices at the same time.

Business will want to respond to the good news and to the serious news in the same way. Business will want to continue to help fellow Americans understand the principles of the free enterprise system. And business will want to operate in such a way it will protect and preserve the confidence of all America.

Housekeeping

Weekly Summary
from
Mississippi House of Representatives

By Andrew Reese
House Information Officer

JACKSON—Polls would stay open an extra hour, political action committees would file financial reports and absentee voting procedures would be revised under a sweeping overhaul of state election laws approved by the Mississippi House of Representatives.

The 217-page measure was among several major bills winning House approval in the past week as the 1986 legislative session entered its last full month. The bill was based on recommendations by an interim legislative committee assigned last year to make a comprehensive study of election laws.

A primary goal of the bill, backers explained, was to eliminate the current hodgepodge of election laws and bring all statutes involving elections together in a systematic and logical package, broken down into major categories so specific items will be easier to locate.

Some of the key provisions include:

Require polls to remain open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on election day instead of 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.; require counties to have mechanical or electronic voting devices by 1989; strengthen campaign finance reporting requirements for candidates; require training of election workers; make it illegal to offer prizes to people to vote or refrain from voting; and establish uniform qualifying deadlines for independents and party candidates.

The measure was approved 114-6 following a brisk debate mostly over the requirement that political action committees file reports on campaign receipts and expenditures in excess of $200. Some lawmakers argued the new requirement was unnecessary and others felt the definition of political committees was too broad. Supporters said people are entitled to know how much PACs are collecting and spending in campaigns.

The measure was an amended version of the elections law bill passed earlier by the Senate. Differences between the two chambers must be resolved before the legislation is released to the governor.

Other bills recently approved by the House include a measure designed to aid consumers and promote the public welfare by regulating the credit life insurance industry. The bill provides for regulation of the multi-million dollar industry by the State Insurance Commissioner and sets maximum credit life rates that may be charged.

House members also approved bills to establish more workable conflict-of-interest laws for public officials in Mississippi; extend the life of the State Ethics Commission and Fiscal Management Board; authorize the Public Employees Retirement Board to provide life insurance for public employees; revise state purchasing laws; permit first-graders who transfer from other states to enter school in Mississippi before their 6th birthday under certain conditions; and allow annual, rather than quarterly, inspections of county jails.

Another House-passed measure would enlarge the state's housing loan program to include energy conservation loans and financing for construction of rental housing developments.

And the House voted again to reduce assessment ratios on homes and farmlands, amending a Senate proposal to make it conform to a previous House bill. The legislation, designed to give a property tax break to homeowners, is expected to wind up eventually in a conference committee to iron out House-Senate differences.

Scores of other bills were awaiting House action as this week began with lawmakers facing another critical deadline. Thursday (March 13) was the last day for initial floor action on general bills and constitutional amendments approved previously in the opposite chamber.

DIABETIC NEUROPATHY

What is diabetic neuropathy? Neuropathy is a degeneration of the nerves. Although it may be caused by a variety of conditions, including alcoholism, neuropathy is a common complication of long-term diabetes.

The symptoms of diabetic neuropathy include stinging, burning, or numbness, generally on the soles of the feet. In addition to the feet, neuropathy may affect the eyes, stomach, heart, or almost any organ in the body that has a nerve supply.

The more severe forms, those that involve internal organs, tend to show up later in life and are usually preceded by other symptoms. Nevertheless, not everyone who has diabetic neuropathy has symptoms.

Many of the symptoms people attribute to poor circulation are actually symptoms of neuropathy, and it is possible for a patient to have a combination of both disorders. Most people with diabetic neuropathy notice the symptoms at night.

They feel fine when they lie down and go to bed, but either before falling asleep or shortly afterwards, they awaken because their feet feel uncomfortable.

If they get up, walk around a bit, or rub the soles of their feet, they may experience temporary relief, or briefly more intense symptoms.

To avoid complications, which in severe cases may lead to amputation, a person with symptoms of neuropathy should consult a physician for treatment.

The primary emphasis of treatment is to control the diabetic condition. Blood-sugar regulation (coming as close to normal as is safe) reduces the severity of diabetic neuropathy. Studies have shown that when patients who have relatively poor control of their diabetes have their insulin regimen intensified, the ability of the nerves to conduct pain signals improves in a matter of weeks.

The loss of ability to feel pain in diabetic neuropathy may lead to complications. When the foot is insensitive to pain, injuries may go untreated. Irritation from a pebble in the shoe may not be noticed, causing sores that are slow to heal.

Even soaking the feet may be a problem. Unable to sense the temperature of the water, the patient may scald himself.

Nerve involvement may result in a loss of sweating of the feet. Dry feet cause skin breakdowns and fissures, which can develop into sores. Daily use of skin lubricants is helpful in preventing the problem.

Another complication of nerve involvement may be loss of muscle tone, which may alter the foot contour.

In severe cases, loss of muscle tone may cause bone breakdown and deformities. Therefore, it is important for diabetics to look at and feel pressure points like the balls of their feet and the tips of their toes for dry, cracking skin.

Whether or not diabetics have symptoms of neuropathy, they should ask their physician to check for the physical signs and symptoms.

If a diabetic has neuropathy, simple precautions can reduce the risk of having serious problems, which include inspecting feet daily; wearing soft leather shoes; gradually checking the inside of shoes for signs of wear; trimming nails in contour of toes; regarding skin breaks, infections, and blisters as urgent and seeing a doctor immediately.

The diabetic should care for the feet by blotting them dry (especially between the toes), keeping dry feet moist with cream or lanolin; and washing feet daily in lukewarm water.

Highway patrol says 'Don't Call Us!'

State lawmakers' call for massive budget cuts has focused attention on some unusual expenditures that state employees and elected officials often make with state money.

One example is the Mississippi Highway Patrol. Facing budget cuts that could force the layoffs of 125 patrolmen, Public Safety Commissioner James Roberts recently declared: "My message to the public is: 'Don't call us, we ain't got nobody to send.'"

But, according to the Associated Press this week, House Speaker Buddy Newman of Valley Park has not been included in the "don't call us" policy. For the past year, a patrolman has been assigned specifically to the Valley Park representative.

Patrolman Nellius Rhodes Jr. drives Newman to work and to social events, often sits on the House floor during lengthy debates and has driven the speaker to college football games on his own time.

He is one of 11 troopers assigned to state politicians. Of the other 10, nine are assigned to Gov. Bill Allain and one Lt. Gov. Brad Dye.

"I've had a lot of members tell me we need to beef up our security down here," Newman said. "Things could happen, especially during a real controversial session like the one we're having now. We just think we need a highway patrolman on this end of the Capitol."

Rhodes is paid $27,153 annually.

His service to Newman is one of several expenditures that government critics say send confusing signals to taxpayers as the state gropes its way through its worst budget crunch in decades.

Some examples of unusual state expenditures follow:

—State agencies spent $16 million in 1985 on outside consultants, including $1,700 for a speechwriter for Jim Buck Ross, state commissioner of agriculture and commerce.

—State employees spend another $18 million for travel.

—The state owns three airplanes, including a $500,000 jet that costs $583 an hour to operate.

—The state Department of Corrections spent $7,300 to have a private company supervise inmates as they dismantled and moved three massive rotary filing machines.

The current budget crisis has prompted Roberts to rethink the use of Newman's highway patrolman, who also is assigned to the department's internal affairs unit.

Newman said he won't fight to keep Rhodes.

Nine patrolmen work in shifts to protect and escort Allain; Dye has one, James "Red" Anthony. The group of 10 costs the state about $400,000 a year for salaries, fringe benefits and vehicles, Roberts said.

Dye drives himself to and from work. He uses Anthony for out-of-town trips, and Anthony travels frequently with the lieutenant governor on the state's airplanes.

According to a report by a legislative watchdog committee, many state agencies have their own form of security—they hire outside consultants to help them in their work.

A Joint Legislative Committee on Performance Evaluation and Expenditure Review reported earlier this year that the state paid consultants $16,142,000 in fiscal 1985.

Congress okays compensation COLA, job training program extension

Working toward adjournment, the Congress tonight approved in the closing hours of the First Session of the 99th Congress a 3.1 percent veterans' compensation cost-of-living adjustment and an extension of a two-year-old job training program for Vietnam-era and Korean conflict veterans. The measure now goes to the President for his signature.

Both the House and Senate passed a 3.1 percent cost-of-living adjustment for veterans who receive VA compensation benefits for service-connected disabilities, the same increase that veterans drawing VA pension benefits will receive. The increase, retroactive to December 1, also applies to dependency and indemnity compensation paid to survivors of veterans who have died of service-related causes.

The measure gives unemployed Vietnam-era and Korean conflict veterans an extra year to apply for job training under the landmark Veterans' Job Training Program and authorizes an additional $65 million for the program in fiscal year 1986.

Developed to address the chronic unemployment rate in the veteran community, the job training program is the first in which employers are paid directly (50 percent of the starting wage up to $10,000) to train and hire veterans. Under the provisions approved tonight, new applicants could begin signing up February 1, 1986. The enrollment period would end January 30, 1987.

In order to be eligible, veterans would have to be unemployed 10 of the last 15 weeks prior to filing an application, a reduction of the present requirement of 15 of the last 20 weeks. The measure also extends until July 31, 1987, the period by which an eligible veteran must be enrolled in approved training. The program has put more than 37 thousand veterans back to work since it became operational in November, 1983.

"These actions are, I think, indicative of the whole year. It's been a sometimes hectic but very productive session for veterans' issues, one of the busiest I've seen in my 19 years in Congress," said Rep. G. V. (Sonny) Montgomery (D-MS), Chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs. "We've weathered many budget storms and fended off attacks on the VA benefit system, but we've still protected our veterans' programs while meeting our mandated cost savings. All in all, I'd say it has been a very successful year for the committee and for veterans."

State Guard to back up National Guard

Governor Bill Allain reports plans for establishment of the Mississippi State Guard and appointment of Roy H. Sawyer Jr. of Sardis as commanding officer.

Allain said the State Guard would be available to assume the state missions currently assigned the National Guard in the event of federal mobilization of the Mississippi National Guard.

He said the State Guard, a voluntary, non-paid organization will be a part of the State Military Department under the Adjutant General of Mississippi.

Major General Nat G. Troutt, adjutant general, said that the Departments of the Army and Air Force and National Guard Bureau have encouraged organization of state defense forces as part of increased preparedness of the nation's military. He said a number of states now have established state defense forces or are in the process of establishing such organizations.

The Mississippi State Guard would assist state authorities or local law enforcement agencies following any federal mobilization of the State's National Guard and, at that time, assume the state mission of the National Guard to provide trained personnel for the protection of life and property.

Another duty would involve the safe-keeping of armories and other National Guard facilities in the absence of federally mobilized guard personnel.

Family assistance for guard members would also be a responsibility.

Sawyer, who will hold the rank of major general, said membership in the State Guard is open to any citizen of the state, male or female over the age of 17, who when joining is not a member of an active or reserve component of the U.S. Armed Forces, or has orders to report as a member of the mobilization forces.

Sawyer said, initially, the primary membership of the State Guard would come from the ranks of retired active or Reserve Component personnel.

Sawyer began his military career as a Naval officer in World War II serving in the Pacific Theatre of operation.

He later received an Army commission and rose to the rank of colonel in the Mississippi National Guard before his retirement several years ago.

He and his wife, the former Marjorie West, make their home in Sardis.

Sawyer said he will devote the major part of his time during the next few months to organizing and staffing the newly formed State Guard.

Everyone's Irish at heart on St. Patrick's Day!

And, whether you plan the Irish-American style menu of corned beef and cabbage in celebration of the day, or whether you prefer the "Auld Sod" traditional repast of salmon, smoked or otherwise, let's top the meal off with a cheering cup or mug of Irish coffee as we all hail St. Pat.

The salmon has often been called the national dish of Old Ireland, its prominence stemming from the Emerald Isle's earliest days, prized as a great delicacy, and star at the banquets of the Kings of Old Ireland - often roasted on a spit, well rubbed with salt and honey, or slow-simmered in a huge pot.

Since I'm not likely to find a whole salmon in the larder, I'll settle for a bit of smoked salmon or salmon steak or perhaps croquettes!

And, if you prefer the more Americanized fare on St. Patrick's Day, then enjoy the corned beef and cabbage tradition which early Irish immigrants in America established when they landed on our shores, fleeing the potato famine in Ireland.

It was easy, good and inexpensive - and these Irish Americans added potatoes as well. But, whatever you choose, why not end the festivities with Irish Coffee - the Irishman's preview of Heavenly Manna?

For each serving, put one or two teaspoons or a dribble more of sugar, depending upon your sweet tooth, into a stemmed goblet or a cup. Then add enough Satan-hot extra-strong black coffee to dissolve the sugar, and stir well - and, if you're using a stemmed goblet or glass, be sure to prepare the glass first by filling with hot water for a second or so, then pouring it out, or by standing a silver or other spoon in the glass, to prevent breaking.

Next, add a generous jigger (1½ ounces) of whiskey, preferably Irish whiskey, although bourbon will do, and fill the glass or cup to within an inch of the rim with coffee.

Float a very generous tablespoon of chilled whipped cream atop it all - but be careful not to mix the cream into the whiskey-laced coffee, just sip the coffee through the cloud of cream atop!

You may omit the whiskey, but you won't get that wonderfully wicked Irish glow - although it's still a heavenly treat to sip the coffee through the chilly cloud of cream!

P.S. And let's not forget St. Joseph's Day on the nineteenth of March - with stuffed artichokes the star!

County Agent's Notes

By Lee Taylor

Mastitis, a disease of the mammary system of the dairy cow can wreak havoc with a dairy herd.

Mastitis reduces profits both in temporary loss of milk production and in the permanent loss in milk producing potential. There are two ways to detect mastitis.

First, there is sub-clinical mastitis. In this case there is no abnormality in the milk. The mastitis is detected by special tests, such as the California Mastitis Test, Wisconsin Mastitis Test, and the Direct Microscopic Somatic Cell Count and others.

In clinical mastitis which is more severe, the mastitis can be detected by visual examination of the milk and udder.

Somatic cell count (body cells) usually increases at the end of the cow lactation. As the cow dries up, there is an increase in the number of cells sloughed off in the milk. In addition at the end of a lactation, there is less milk produced so the normal number of cells is concentrated in a lower volume of milk.

Udder injury from misuse of the milking machine, improperly designed stanchions, or injury in the field can cause mastitis. In any of these cases the number of white blood cells will go up and register as an increased somatic cell count.

Mastitis has a marked effect on the products made from milk. It changes the composition of the solids - not fat and the butterfat, making the milk susceptible to the development of off flavors.

Our dairies here in the county are Grade "A" and are tested monthly by the Health Department. However, if a producer is having a problem with sub-clinical mastitis, the following guidelines should be helpful.

1. Determine the types of infection in the herd by having a bulk sample analyzed in a lab.
2. Use the California Mastitis Test to detect problem cows.
3. Seek veterinary consultation to determine the most effective treatment.
4. If milk is about to be degraded due to a high cell count, dry cows off early.
5. Grate all cows that have a clinical infection.
6. As recommended by the National Mastitis Council, use a dry cow treatment in all cows. Make certain that each cow is free of clinical mastitis before she is dried up.
7. Treat with a commercially prepared product. Stay away from home remedies.

8. Give the full series of recommended treatments. If you stop short you may not knock the infection out.

Read the label and observe milk discard times and pre-slaughter withdrawal times.

In this part of the article we will focus on growing the Photinia or Red Tip. This is a very popular ornamental in our area and has several uses in the home landscape.

Many do not know that there are three species of Photinia grown in the south. The Photinia serrulata (Chinese Photinia) attains a mature height of 30 feet. Photinia Fraseri

'Red Tip is good for home landscaping'

(Fraseri Photinia) has a mature height of 15-20 feet. Photinia glabra (Japanese or Red Tip Photinia) will be 10 feet tall at maturity.

All Photinia do well in full sun to partial shade. The more sunlight the plant receives, the better the color of the new growth. All prefer light, sandy, well-drained but fertile soils. They are sensitive to poorly drained soils. If drainage is a problem plant on a raised bed.

When planting Photinia, dig the hole twice as wide as the root ball or container. The hole should also be 4-6 inches deeper than the original root ball.

To the soil removed from the hole, add a generous amount of organic matter (compost or peat) and mix thoroughly. Refill the hole with this mixture until half the hole is filled. Add water to discourage air pockets. After you have watered finish filling the hole.

Place 2-4 inches of mulch around the plant. This will reduce the need for weeding, conserve water, and protect the roots from freezing. Fertilize the plants the second year of growth.

Frequent pruning is necessary and helps promote new growth.

We have seen several plantings infected with Photinia leaf spot. The spots occur on old and young foliage. The spots generally are surrounded by a maroon border. If your plants have these symptoms, spray with zineb or maneb every 14 days.

Red Tip is especially useful for screens, tall mass plantings and border plantings.

See your realtor.

Is an IRA right for you?

You've heard all the talk about Individual Retirement Accounts. The tax break you get. The retirement income you can count on.

But, you're probably wondering if an IRA is right for you.

"Don't you need $2,000?"

If you work, you can start an IRA at Hancock Bank with as little as $5.00. Then, just put in what you want, when you want.

You don't have to contribute every month, or even every year. But your money keeps on working for you, earning interest.

The money you put in is not taxable until you take it out. Even the interest is sheltered.

"How much can I put away?"

If you're employed, you can put up to $2,000 in your IRA. $2,000 each for working couples. Or, a $2,250 combined total for a couple if only one of you is employed.

If you deposit at least $2,000, you're eligible for your choice of 18-month or 30-month fixed-interest rates. Amounts less than $2,000 earn money-market rates that change monthly. When your IRA builds up to $2,000, we'll be happy to lock in a fixed rate for you. It's usually higher.

"Can I still get a break on '85 taxes?"

Yes. You can open an IRA right up until April 15th of 1986, and still apply the tax-savings to your 1985 return.

But don't wait past April 15th. Even if the IRS gives you an extension for your return. That's a firm deadline this year.

"Do you have to itemize?"

No. You can use a regular 1040 form and still get credit for your IRA contribution. It comes right off the top of your taxable income.

"When can I get my money?"

You can start taking money out of your IRA at age 59½. Of course, it's your money, and you can take it out any time you want. But the federal government imposes a 10% penalty for withdrawal before 59½. And if your money is in a fixed-rate time deposit, there may be an additional penalty.

So, think of your IRA as a long term investment for retirement. Not a temporary tax shelter or savings for emergencies.

When you reach 59½, you can get your

IRA in one lump sum, or set up a regular monthly income. Or, if you choose, you can wait until 70½ to start receiving payments.

"I only have a little to put in now. Would I have much by retirement?"

Let's say you're 30 years old, and in the 29% tax bracket. Look at how $50.00 a month would add up:

Estimated value at age 65: (based on 10% interest)
TOTAL DEPOSIT OVER 35 YEARS @ $50.00 PER MONTH	$21,000.00
TAX SAVINGS	6,090.00
TOTAL INVESTMENT	14,910.00
ESTIMATED IRA VALUE	172,252.00
ESTIMATED MONTHLY PAYMENT FOR 15 YEARS	2,027.00
TOTAL RETURN	$364,858.00

"What's a Self-Directed IRA?"

It's a new service offered by Hancock Bank that lets you make the investment decisions on your IRA.

Suppose you want to buy blue-chip stocks, mutual funds, or the new zero-coupon bonds. You simply call Hancock Bank and tell us where you want to invest. We won't advise you - it's your decision. But we can make the investment for you, usually for less than you'd be charged at a regular brokerage firm.

"Can I really start my IRA with a phone call?"

We've tried to clear up some questions about IRAs. And if you're beginning to think an IRA is the way to go for you, you're on the right track. So, pick up the phone and call Mae Beth Tracy at 868-4406. She'll answer any other questions you might have. Explain the new self-directed IRAs we offer. She'll quote you our current rates.

And, if you like, Mae Beth will fill out an application form with you over the phone and mail it to you. So, all you'll have to do is sign it at home, and send it in with your first deposit.

Or come by any of our offices to ask about IRAs. We're always glad to see you. But, open your IRA now. You'll enjoy the satisfaction of getting a tax break this year. While you build an income for retirement.

THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS

Members of the Waveland Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints are excited about the completion of their new $1.7 million "Stake Center."

"Stake Center" is the formal name for a building like the new one that will now serve the Gulfport Mississippi Stake.

The term "stake" refers to a geographical division of the church. It is comprised of several "wards" or "branches."

A ward consists of 400 to 600 members. Branches are smaller congregations. The Gulfport Stake contains six wards located in Waveland, Gulfport, Biloxi, and Pascagoula.

This new Stake Center will serve as the activity center for all six wards.

In addition, it will also serve as the meetinghouse for the two congregations located in the Gulfport area.

The new Mormon building has a 300-seat chapel, 22 classrooms of various sizes, a cultural hall for sports and entertainment purposes, several administrative offices, a genealogical library, resource centers, a below-ground-level baptismal font, and a large kitchen.

It includes space to accommodate people from three wards at one time. Construction of the 25,000 square foot facility began in October 1984 and took 14 months to complete.

In keeping with church policy, the Stake Center will be fully paid for before it is dedicated.

The chapel, in addition to congregational seating, contains 75 additional seats for choir members and speakers. Behind the chapel, the cultural hall opens up for an additional 925 chairs with a view of the pulpit. Thus, with the entire area opened up, it can provide total seating for 1,300 people.

The cultural hall is designed for more than just an overflow area—it includes a full-size basketball court and can be used for sports, dancing, dining and cultural events.

Also, it features a large stage, suitable for musical and dramatic performances.

The entire facility was constructed with considerations for the handicapped. It is built on the ground level with entrance ramps for wheelchairs. Aisles in the chapel itself are wide and spacious, with carpeting that will not hinder mobility. The doorways are wide and the bathrooms are equipped with facilities for the handicapped.

The Stake Center is located at the intersection of Klein Road and David Street near Belaire School in the Orange Grove area of Gulfport.

The building follows the new pattern of Mormon buildings, currently under construction in many of the fifty states, with walls eight feet high, and a hugh roof supported by prefabricated wooden trusses.

The rectangular shape is designed to be more energy efficient because there are fewer corners and turns in the walls. The ceiling has extra insulation to reduce energy loss.

John S. Scott, president of the Gulfport Stake and a resident of Gulfport, explained that the Mormon policy is to construct buildings that are more functional, economical and flexible, oriented toward multi-purpose use. The chapels, however, will continue to be constructed along traditional Mormon lines.

"An open house for the public featuring guided tours, exhibits and films telling about the programs of the church has been planned," adds Harry Bell, local Bishop.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

Daily, Tuesday through Friday, March 25-28, 7 to 9 p.m., Guided Tours of the facilities, displays provided by all auxiliaries of the church, and Family Home Evening Demonstration.

Board provides matching for beachfront study

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has received verbal approval from the State Attorney General's Office to divert its seawall taxes to beachfront repair.

The taxes have been used for the past several years to pay off bonds for the development of the county's port and harbor facilities, but once diverted, they will provide $77,000 in matching funds for the first year of a two-year shore protection study by the US Army Corps of Engineers.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex said

Thursday he had obtained a verbal opinion from Assistant Attorney General Sam Keyes and expects a written opinion to arrive soon.

The board considered the possibility of waiting for the written opinion, but decided to act on the matter Thursday because the Corps had set March 15 as its target date for the beginning of the study.

"What we want to impress upon the board is the need to proceed now," Beachfront Technical Advisory Council Member John Scafile Jr. told the supervisors.

"Without the feasibility study, we will never get the Corps money and without the Corps money we will never get the project," he added.

The project that will result from the two-year study is expected to include a long-range reconstruction of the beachfront, drainage and Beach Road. The entire project is presently expected to cost $10 million to $12 million.

The second year matching funds for the county are expected to total about $55,000. Some of the matching can be provided as in-kind services.

In addition, Scafile said the study can be terminated at any point that it shows that the project could not pass the cost-benefit test that is one of the criteria for obtaining a congressional appropriation for construction.

The approval for the matching funds passed unanimously.

The matching funds will be deposited into an account that will be administered by Gulf Regional Planning Commission.

In addition, the county is planning to ask the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland to provide part of the funding for the project.

County eyes continuing Bayou Cadet study

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors has learned that a county-operated marina at Bayou Cadet is still a possibility.

No action has been taken regarding a proposed 200-foot slip facility since Bureau of Marine Resources took soil borings at proposed locations last year.

According to Steed Robinson of South Mississippi Planning and Development District, most of the $18,000 grant for a feasibility study on Bayou Cadet has not been used.

He asked the board for authorization to set up a meeting for Bureau officials, County Port and Harbor Director James DeBlanc and Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge to discuss continuing the study.

Beat Four Supervisor Sam Periniario said the study should consider simple, less expensive construction methods than those usually proposed by planning agencies.

He complained that when the board hears a presentation from a planning agency or similar organization, the project proposed usually requires complex, innovative, expensive construction methods.

Robinson was authorized to represent the county in administration of the bureau grant.

beats. All are serving five-year terms.

"There are no blacks in my beat," he told Lang.

The remaining members of the board are all beat appointees and include Perry Gibson, Beat One, term expiring 1990; Robert Baxter, Beat Two, until 1988; David Peranich, Beat Three, until 1990; Dr. Joseph Lee, Beat Four, until 1990; and Brother Martin Hernandez, Beat Five, until 1987.

The board authorized its attorney, Joseph Gex, to look into the legality of extending the terms of the at-large representatives.

In other business Thursday, the board:

- Approved purchase of a mower for McLeod Park;
- Authorized a proposal by Ladner that Bureau of Marine Resources be requested to inspect a public boat launch near Bay Cove, where spoils from nearby work were allegedly dumped and have interfered with launching at low tide;
- Nominated Geraldine Lang for a seat on the Board of South Mississippi Planning and Development District;
- Took bids under advisement for overlay of Esplanade and Felicity streets;
- Accepted a report from Seal on the status of several road projects and proposed funding cuts for the State Aid Road Program; and
- Purchased five fuel storage tanks from Munro Petroleum for a total price of $10.

The board meets again on March 27.

Schools invited to join attendance competition

Hancock County and Bay St. Louis public schools have been invited to participate in a state-wide "School Attendance Week" competition being sponsored by the Mississippi Association of Schools March 17-21.

Awards will be given on county, state and association district levels for best percentage of school attendance during that week. Ties will be resolved by using attendance percentages from the first day of school to March 21.

Perfect attendance homeroom classes at the winning schools will be honored with certificates. In districts without a homeroom system, English classes will be used. The competition will include special education classes.

Awards will be presented March 27.

ETV Brief

FARMER STRESS
With the threat of loss of financial security and a long-time way of life, many farmers in Mississippi find themselves under a great deal of mental, emotional and physical stress. In a program to air at 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 17, on Mississippi ETV, "Farmweek" reporter Rebekah Therrell looks at the stress farmers are experiencing and the various efforts in the state to provide help.

Mental health clinics report a growing number of farmers seeking help, and stress seminars for farmers are becoming more commonplace across the state.

On another segment of the program, "Farmweek" reporters discuss how well the dairy whole-herd buy-out program was received in Mississippi and how the 1986 acreage reduction programs will affect plantings in the state.

Extension money management specialist Beverly Riggs will also give tips on how to keep car insurance premiums low.

DEPRESSION

One of the most common of mental illnesses and one of the most treatable.

When does a temporary depression become a clinical depression? How can you tell when someone you love — or perhaps yourself — needs help? These symptoms are easy to recognize:

- Sleeping too much — or insomnia
- Confusion, inability to make decisions
- Loss of energy, fatigue
- Guilt feelings, lack of self-worth
- Lack of interest in work or play
- Loss of weight or excessive weight gain

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club's Garden Center at 114 Leonhard Avenue in Bay St. Louis will serve as headquarters and starting point for the 1986 Spring Pilgrimage tour of the city.

Among highlights of this year's tour, which is conducted under auspices of the garden club and the Mississippi Gulf Coast Council of Garden Clubs, will be a Garden Center display of the paintings of Laurent Smith of Bay St. Louis.

Smith, a resident of the Bay for the past 17 years, has been painting for some 25 years.

The paintings being shown are a representative selection from the 300-odd he has produced.

They are painted in oils on stretched canvas or hardboard panels, using a fine-stroke technique suggestive of pointillism, to define a more-than-usual amount of detail.

All are of landscape themes, depicting in most cases actual scenes, several of which are local.

While subjects are mainly restricted to Southern Coasts and flatlands, they range from the Carolina tobacco fields to Texas hill country, with Mississippi and Louisiana featured.

The painting is done in a home-studio, mostly at night, using appropriately designed artificial lighting.

Typically, a work begins with on-site photography, notes or sketches, supplemented by certain subtle emotional responses recorded in memory.

From this data, rough compositional sketches are made in the studio, followed by small-scale color studies.

The final product may be a detailing enlargement of one of the studies or a composite of several, Smith explained.

The studio activity does not always closely follow the initial field work. Sometimes 20 years may elapse between the first impression and the final rendering, he noted.

"Good painting is largely a product of mood. When you're painting just for the hell of it you paint what moves you at the moment," the artist feels.

The average picture represents about 80 hours final brushwork plus half as many more devoted to field and preliminary activity.

Smith says his paintings have evolved from a desire to preserve for future recall the fleeting pleasures encountered in roaming the back roads and quiet streets of the South.

Also, attempting to recreate on a flat plane the multi-dimensional charm of the open-air scene presents an endlessly-fascinating challenge. No other motivation is involved, he said.

Smith, a native of New York State, has lived and worked most of his 78 years in various parts of the South. He still paints but has retired from all business activity.

His art education - a continuing process - is obtained from extensive reading of technical and art-history publications, long hours spent in museums, galleries, and exhibits, and a close study of other painters' works. He has had no formal training.

Except for a brief, unsuccessful episode in free-lance commercial art as a young man, art work, consisting at various times of activity in pen-and-ink, pastel, and water-color, has been restricted to leisure hours. Sustaining occupations have been in the distantly related fields of topographic and geologic map drafting and reproduction, technical illustration, and cartographic engineering.

These assignments required a familiarity with air-brush, silk-screen, and color offset printing procedures, among other things which he feels have all contributed to his technical acumen as an artist.

TOUR LUNCHEON STOP—The Landmark Townsquare Restaurant and Lounge at 210 Main St. in Bay St. Louis will serve a special lunch for participants on the 1986 Spring Pilgrimage Tour of the city to be sponsored by Bay-Waveland Garden Club. A creole cottage was built in 1880 on the site originally owned by P. R. Pray who came from Maine in 1820. The building was purchased by J. O. Mauffray on April 12, 1906 and a front addition added later. The building, renovated and converted to a restaurant in 1979, is currently leased by Kay and Sonny Wolfe of Bay St. Louis who operate "The Landmark" which has been featured in "Southern Living," "Better Homes And Gardens" and "Mississippi Magazine." Kay Wolfe reported Friday the Landmark is an official tour stop and will be open from 11 a.m. to all tour participants, whether or not they order lunch. (Bay-Waveland Garden Club photo)

Friendship Oak NS DAR

By Joe Pilet, publicist

Fred Wagner, a well known Bay St. Louis architect was guest speaker on Saturday when members of the Friendship Oak Chapter NS DAR met during the lunch hour at the Ramada Inn of Long Beach.

Announcing his topic as "Pericles - Meet Victoria," Wagner told the group that fashions in buildings seem to change about every 25 years. He explained fashions in furnishings, fabrics, and wearing apparel also change and are influenced by financial conditions, political factors, climate, and the taste of socially prominent persons.

In a relaxed, conversational, and frequently amusing manner, Wagner led his audience through the quarter-century periods in architecture beginning with the 1700-1725 and continuing through the 1850's. Trends in architecture in the 1700's were related to artistic events with France and England setting the styles.

Pericles, whose birth must have been somewhere around 490 B.C., fostered the highest in arts and science in the ancient world. Possibly with a bit of "tongue in cheek" Wagner "revived him," while pointing up the beauty of simplicity.

The Gothic style developed in France, Wagner said, and touched on its acceptance and approval throughout many European countries, and later finding favor in this country.

In judging architecture, Wagner said what may be admired by one generation may be called "ugly" by another. Beauty, strength and usefulness are the rule of thumb by which churches, buildings, and homes are to be judged.

In discussing Georgian architecture Wagner said the name was derived from the English kings who reigned during the time of George I, II, III and IV. Georgian architecture greatly influenced American colonial homes and churches.

Wagner said both Bay St. Louis and Biloxi have excellent examples of typical early styles and mentioned the French, Spanish, and Caribbean influences depicted in the older parts of these little cities.

The next regular meeting of the Friendship Oak Chapter is scheduled for Wednesday, April 9 at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Nunez C. Pilet of 520 Highland Drive in Bay St. Louis. David Watts of the Hancock County Forestry Commission is to present a slide program on famous trees of Mississippi.

American Legion Auxiliary 139

Mrs. George E. Baud reported on the planting of trees at Christ Episcopal Day School in Bay St. Louis, and at St. Clare's Elementary School in Waveland to celebrate Arbor Day. Mrs. Baud stated students were enthusiastic about the tree plantings.

President Newkirk announced that the members of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club will plant crapemyrtle trees on the property at the corner of Carroll Avenue and Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis.
